1. The Hsiaofengman (126-43, 43-39) Hydroelectric Plant is operated at top capacity by 60 Soviets and 30 Japanese technicians, assisted by Chinese laborers. A roving team of 20 Korean and 10 Soviet technicians are quartered at the plant. During the United Nations drive northward in 1950, these technicians had the task of transporting generators and other equipment from the Changjin (127-15, 40-23) Hydroelectric Plant to Hsiaofengman. The plan was dropped when the Chinese Communists entered the conflict.
2. A battalion of Soviet troops is in the dam area. Chinese Communist troops guard the plant, reservoir, and the railroad between Hsiaofengman and Kirin.
